The only comment I will venture to make on the subject upon which I have written is, that on ten alone the Chinese Government will receive at Tamsui this year some $300,000, and there is not a single buoy ofther on the bar or in the harbour. They are at last putting up a tide pole, after three years arging, and perhaps mainly because a small vessel went a shore recently for want simple and so cheap a contrivance. It is disgraceful that in so dangerous a port as Tomeni the marks for entering and leaving should be determined and laid down by a few ignorant and interested Chinese pilots. If a properly qualified. Harbour-Master, able to take soundings and their bearings, were appointed, days for the cases to come on at the sessions of and the bar properly buoyed, the danger to shipping, both Foreign and Native, would be reduced to a minimum: As things stand at present a large vessel or steamer might go en the har without the slightest hope of receiving any assistance from shore, if we may judge from our experience of the 6th instant.

I may remark, as I close, that we made a small subscription for the Uhinese erew; the only recognition we can effer Mr. Hall's courage and coolness is to give them the publicity they deserve.-Yours, &c.,

For a packet above 2 ounces not exceeding 4 ounces. These rates apply to Printed Circulars, Price Lists, Market Reports, and all printed papers other than Newspapers, as well as to Books and Trade Patterns or Samples. Postage on Correspondence forwarded by Private Ship to the Straits Settlemente must be prepaid at the following rates, viz. For Letters, Scentager to ounce. For Papers, 2 each. For Book Packets and Packets of 6 for each 4 ounces. Patterns, 2 each. The registration fee on such correspondence is Twelve cents for each Letter, Paper or Packet. Many boxes of letters are received at the Post Office not sealed, that is to say, the box is fastened with scaling wax, but there is no impression of a seal. The attention of boxholders is called to the necessity of carefully scaling ench boxes with some recognisable seal, and of sending a Chitbook or receipt with them. The omission of the latter precaution leaves a doubt as to weather the contents of the box ever reached the Post Office; the omission of the former, as to whether part of them might not have been abstracted for the sake of the Postage Stamps. There is a common belief in the existence of a Parcel Post by which such articles as Fars. Carios, Silk Dresses, Scarves, Jewellory, Artificial Teeth, &c., can be forwarded at low rates, It cannot be too distinctly stated that such things can only be sent as Letters, and the very

HOW TO REPROVE. Reprove mildly and sweetly; in the calmest manner, in the gentlest terms; not in a haughty or imperious way, not hastily or fiercely; not with sour looks, or in hitter language; for these ways do beget all the evil, and hinder the best effects of reproof. They do cortainly inflame and disturb the person reproved. They breed wrath, disdain, and hatred against the reprover, but do not so well enlighten the man to see his error, or affect him with kindly sense of the miscarriage; or dispose him to correct his fault. Such reproofs look rather like the wounds and persecution of enmity than as remedies ministered by a friendly hand; they harden men with stomach, and they scorn to mend upon such occasion. If reproof doth not savour of humanity, it significth nothing; it | v not go down or work effectually.—Isaac Barrow.

BOCCACCIO AND PETRARCH. between Boccaccio and Petrarch was their common love of poetry, which indeed remained the keynote of their subsequent intercourse. But it is equally true that if, instead of being among the brightest stars of Itulian literature, and the prime leaders and movers of the glorious Renaissance of art and letters, these two men bad been private individuals with no particular claim to notice, yet the record of their friendship would be valuable, owing to the rare constancy of their affection, the remarkable circumstances by which it was tested, and the interesting and touching traits of individuality revealed on on these occasions. It is all the more to be wondered at that as far as the present writer is aware, a monographic treatment of this interesting subject has never yet been attempted, either in Italy or in any of the countries where the names of the two noets are household words. Boccaccio and Petrarch became acquainted at a comparatively advanced age, when men as a rule are little apt to indulge in andden impulses of affection. Both held high places in the republic of letters, both had been employed on important diplomatic missions, and had breathed the chilling atmosphere of Italian courts; both, in short, were men of world and of a world of subtle statecraft and intrique. Yet their friendship seems to have been instantaneous, a frieudship at first sight, as warm and unselfish as was ever contracted by freshmen at college. Like schoolboys, also, they at once begin telling each other their screts; and their correspondence, commenced soon after their first meeting and continued almost to the last day of their lives, is not surpassed in literature, as regards the variety of topics touched upon and the familiarity and perfect mutural confidence evinced in every turn of expression. Moreover, in spite of its almost impetuous beginning, this intimacy sustained the test of time sur prisingly well.
